Bazargan says Iran now closer to Arabs

TEHRAN, July 27 (R) — Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan has said Iran's revolution which toppled 2,500 years of monarchy had brought the country closer to Arab and non-Arab nations, the official voice of the Islamic Radio reported Friday.

The radio said Bazargan was speaking at the residence of the new Moroecan Ambass or Abdulhadi Tazi Thursday night.

Dr. Bazargan was accompanied by five other cabinet ministers, including Foreign Minister Ibrahim Yazdi, indicating that the two countries' relations, which became strained over the ousted Shah's stay in Morocco were on the mend.

The Shah, who left Iran last January spent some time in Egypt before going to-Merocco as the guest of King Hassan. He later went to the Bahamas and then to Mexico, where he is now living with his family.

Yazdi meanwhile said Friday the United States should learn from Iran and Vietnam that problems cannot be solved by force. He was commenting in an interview with an English-language' weekly "Iran Week," oo U.S. military plans to defend the Gulf regioo.

Dr. Yazdi said: " A 100.000man army or more cannot fulfill America's intentions in Iran. If the United States is to learn any-IIII LITAII OF Vietnam, it is that it cannot solve any problems with force."

Prince Muhammad Al-Faisal said the amount is likely to rise quickly in the near future — to $ 40 billion — but that those figures are merely rough estimates.

Some of the money, he said, is literally stuffed into mattresses by its owners, who don't want to invest their money in interestbearing accounts but have been unable to find Sharia-based banks in which to put it.

However, he said, " the trend is definitely away from interest-bearing banks." Prince Muhammad, chairman of the Paris-based International Association of Islamic Banks, outlined the growing role of Islamic banking Wednesday at the open-

Under the Sharia, all interest is nnacceptable, the prince explained, because money has no intrinsic value and so alone cannot generate wealth and also because a loan must involve taking of risks. The solution, he told a somewhat skeptical audience of more traditional bankers, is that under Islam banks have set up a viable system for loans and financing which involves the bank becoming an actual partner in its clients' pro-

Five more arrested

Germany to deport Iranians involved in secret tribunals

Germany has said it would deport Iranian students who persecuted their fellow-countrymen.

A government spokesman issued the warning after five leftwing Iranian students were arrested earlier Thursday on suspicion of forming a criminal organ-

The prosecutors' office said the five were accused of intimidating fellow students and, in two cases, of causing bodily injury, and added that one of the five had a knotted hangmans' rope in his car.

The arrests brought the number of left-wing Iranian students detained in recent days for persecution of other Iranians to 18.

The others were arrested in Hamburg on suspicion of abducting, beating and interrogating Iramians who they accused of working for SAVAK, the secret police in the Shah's regime.

In Bremen the homes of 11 others were searched Thursday and arrest warrants were made for two others, who appeared to have flown back to Iran

Israeli troops protest sentence of army officer

TEL AVIV, July 27 (R) — Two dozen Israeli reserve soldiers demonstrated Thursday against the imprisonment of an officer found guilty of murdering Arab prisoners of war during Israel's invasion of South Lebanon in March 1978.

The soldiers, some of whom said they served under the imprisoned officer's command during the invasion, gathered in front of the Defense Ministry headquarters in Tel Aviv in the latest of a series of demonstrations for and against the sentence. The case, which only recently leaked through strict censorship restrictions, involved an officer said to have killed four prisoners. He was originally sentenced to 12 years in prison and reduced to the rank of private. But the term was reduced to eight years by ... was not available for comment. an appeal court and later to two years by chief of staff Lt. Gen. Rafael Eitan.

In a statement issued by the military Thursday, Eitan said he accepted the court's version and not that of the officer.

The statement quoted Gen. Eitan as saying that military ethics will be preserved and "enforced without partiality."

down about 350 franjans on a black list.

The Bremen prosecutor said the arrested students were aged between 25 and 30. Their names were not released.

He said police had found two "wanted" placards written by supporters of unofficial Ayatollah Khomeini, naming two students as SAVAK informers and virtually sentencing them to death.

One of the two, aged 32, had been beaten up at his home and made to promise to return to Iran. Instead he had gone underground with his wife and was living at a Ayatoliah Nouri, an emissary of Khomeini, told a press conference that Iran had a list of all former SAVAK agents and would bring them to trial by diplomatic means.

Nonri condemned recent actions by supporters of the Islamic revolution in West Germany who have seized and interrogated 15 Iranians they suspected of having worked for the secret police.

The Ayatollah said he would appeal in writing to Iranian students in West Germany, calling for restraint and asking them not to use violence against former SAVAK members.

West German police have arrested 13 Iranians suspected of abducting, beating and interrogating compatriots they allege have worked for SAVAK.

He called on members and informants of SAVAK to give themselves up to the new government, which possessed a list of all former SAVAK agents.

The Ayatollah said the Iranians held in West Germany in connection with the interrogations were not "anarchists." Their outrage was understandable after years of being spied on by SAVAK, though they had no right to take the law into their own hands.

Ayatollah Nouri, said to be the chief ideologist of the Revolutio-nary Council, criticized Western press reports about his country. He said it was wrong to compare the methods of the revolutionary courts with the mediaeval inquisition. The trials were public and the defendants had the right to choose a defense counsel.

The North Rhine-Westphalia Interior Ministry said two Iranians at a university in the Rhineland had sought police protection after one received an anonymous telephone threat. State Interior Minister Burkhard Hirsch appealed to all Iranians threatened by "self-insticeseekers' to get police protection. He said he had ordered communal authorities to examine the possibility of expelling what he called Iranian persecutors.

The West German cabinet will discuss the incidents at its regular weekly meeting this week.

Key party may resign Likud group

TEL AVIV, July 27 (R) - A key party in Israel's ruling Likud alliance is threatening to withdraw ns four ministers from the cabinet unless new economic policies are adopted within 90 days.

The deadline was set Thursday night by the Central Committee of the Liberal Party.

The committee also instructed the four Liberal cabinet ministers to spend the next three months trying to persuade their colleagues to accept proposals for economic recovery presented by the party's leading member, Finance Minister Simcha Ehrlich Younger members of the committee proposed that: Ehrlich should resign from the cabinet immediately. But a compromise proposal containing the 90-day deadline was finally adopted by a two-thirds majority.

In a newspaper interview Ehrlich said Prime Minister Begin's government had caused the failure of Finance Ministry plans to revive the economy and stem the tide of inflation, which could reach 100 per cent this year. Two weeks ago Ehrlich had been expected to ask a special cabinet meeting to reduce government expenditure by cancelling all food subsidies. But when the cabinet session

BBC may have to cut its Arabic service

By Nigel Harvey

Loudon Bureau

LONDON, July 27 - The BBC's Arabic service began with regular broadcasts throughout the Arab world over forty years ago. Its nine hour daily service is now under severe threat of elimination after the government's £4 billion budget cit.

The Foreign Office which finances the BBC's external services is chopping £4m off the service's budget of £37.2m in the last financial year. Whichever way the constraints are allocated across the international, 39 language service, they are expected to reduce broadcasting by at least 17 per cent and possibly 25 per cent.

The complete threat to the Arabic service, which is second only to the 24-hour English language World Service in size, came under one allocation scenario the BBC has presented the Foreign

Along with the Arabie service's £1m, the rest of the £4m could be saved by ending all broadcasts to Western Europe in Portugese, Italian, French, German, Greek, Spanish, Finnish and Turkish. The world radio monitoring service would also be cut.

Other possibilities include ending or cutting all vernacular broadcasts to Iran, the subcontiuent, and South East Asia. A new £6m relay station in Singapore is also at risk. BBC Chairman Sir Michael Swann expressed grave disquiet over the cuts at a meeting with Lord Carrington, the Foreign Secretary, last week. But it seems clear the government intends to go ahead despite the acrimonious debate brewing between Foreign Office officials and the BBC as the

During his talks with Badran, Garcia underlined the need to protect the rights of people in developing countries against racial discrimination and political and economic imperialism, the agency added.

Before its talks with Badran, the Cuban delegation called on Ibrahim who stressed Jordan's support for the non-aligned movement and briefed the guests on his country's position on the Middle East conflict.

Jordan has often declared that no solution for the Middle East issue can be reached unless Israel first withdraws from Arab territories occupied in 1967 and recognizes Palestinian rights.

Garcia in turn expressed his country's support of the Arab position on the Middle East and its full backing of the Palestinian people, the agency said.

Zambians welcome

LUSAKA, Zambia, July 27 (AP) - Despite fears for her safety, Queen Elizabeth arrived in Zambia on a Royal Air Force VC10 above the reach of guerrilla rock-

The Queen was believed out of danger because the Zambians reportedly"weot into the guerrilla camps and took away all the weapons," sources close to the royal party said.

A Nimrod with a search-andrescue team was prepared to parachute to the Royal Plane in case of an emergency and a Hercules was flying "somewhere nearby" the VC10, the sources said.

The Queeo, her husband the Duke of Edinburgh, and Prince Andrew, 19, reportedly had planned to fly to Lusaka in their 16year-old Andover, but it later was decided to change in Francistown, Botswana, to the VC10.

The larger plane is capable of flying above the 15,000-feet range of the Zimbabwe African peoples' unioo rockets, and was well out of their reach on the "daoger corner" near Livingstone, Rhodesia, the sources said.

In a letter delivered to the Zambian leader Friday morning, Nkomo expressed "heartfelt gratitude" to Dr. Kaunda for invitations to attend Friday afterooon's welcoming ceremony but declined to attend.

• "Propaganda was mounted using the British Queeo as a political instrument," Nkomo told a press conference.

But Nkomo aides discounted this. "The Zambians really wanted Mr. Nkomo to meet the Queen," said Nkomo's press spokesman, Willie Msarurwa.

Haig urges increase in defense budget

WASHINGTON, July 27 (R) — Former NATO Commander Alexander Haig has joined opponents of SALT II, wrging the Senate to delay action on the treaty pending a major strategic review and a commitment to new defense program.

Gen Haig, who retired from his NATO command and the army June, made an eloquent plea for new defense spending in testimouv to the senate armed services committee.

heard the Joint Chiefs of Staff call for a bold new U.S. defense effort to meet a Soviet weapons buildup. The demands have been sympathetically received by members of both the Armed Services Committee and the Foreign Relations Committee, increasing the likelohood that President Carter will have to make a hig defense commitment to win ratification of the traty later this year. Under questioning, Gen. Haig Senate should amend or reject the treaty, although he said it contained flaws.

But he said the first move should be for the administration to undertake a review of what strategic philosophy it should follow in the 1980s and to make its proposals, to implement its strategy.

Gen. Haig's own defense proposals covered both the conventional and nuclear areas.

Refugee airlift by U.S. biggest since Hanoi war

KUALA LUMPUR, July 27 (AP) - The United States is carrying out one of its higgest airlifts of Vietnamese refugees since the end of the Iodochina War in 1975. refugee officials said Friday.

The U.S. Embassy said more than 4,082 refugees are being flown from Kuala Lumpur for permanent settlement in the United States this week.

Seven hundred left Friday, and 2,000 more expected to leave before the end of the mooth.

The 30,000th refugee to leave Malaysia for the United States since 1975 left Thursday night. Ambassador Robert Miller and his wife were at the airport to wish and his family a safe trip.

The refugee was Chau Vinh, who with his wife, Khuu Hue, four sons, six daughters and a 45year-old cousin of his wife, will settle in New York.

There are an estimated 400,000 refugees from Vietnam, Loas and Combodia in camps and on the beaches in Malaysia, Indonesia, Singapore, the Philippines, Thailand and Hong Kong. Nations attending a U.N.conference on refugees in Geneva last week pledged to give homes to 260,000 of them

The U.S. Embassy in Bangkok reported that the U.S. 7th Fleet rescue operation ordered by President Carter saved 64 refugees at sea this week. It said the guided missile cruiser England, sailing in the Gulf of Thailand with the carrier Kitty Hawk and other Navy ships, rescued 44 Vietnamese from a sinking 24-foot boat. They were transferred to the Navy tanker Wahash which already had aboard 19 refugees rescued earlier in the week west of the Philippines.

The force also rescued a Vietnamese man from the water. He was reported alive but incoherent from exposure.

All refugees rescued by the Navy will be admitted to the United States.

The Norwegian freighter Lysekil arrived in Singapore Friday with 256 refugees it picked up in the South China Sea. They will be taken back to Norway and resettled there. And a Canadian Air Force plane took off from Hong Kong with 201 refugees bound for Toronto and Vancouver. It was the first of 11 flights that will take 2,000 to Canada.

In Hong Kong a tough new bill imposing a maximum penalty of one million Hong Kong dollars (about $ 200,000) and seven years imprisonment aimed at racketeers who brought Vietnamese refugees was gazetted Friday.

An official announcement said the hill will apply to those "persons who assist or make arrangements, in Hong Kong or outside, to bring unauthorized entrants in Hong Kong...(the bill) also provides for the forfeiture of vessels and other property.

Sahel's rugged mountains and a guerrilla war stymie Ethiopia

By Mary Dines

LONDON -Sahel is the north-eastern province of Eritrea. It is also one of the largest, covering an area north of Alfabet in the south to the Sudanese border in the

Here, among the mountains, ravines and barren plains, guerrillas of the Eritrean People's Liberation Front face the Ethiopian regular army on two

Back in January 15,000 Ethiopian soldiers. accompanied by Soviet officers and military experts, landed on the east coast and headed west across the sandy lowland areas to the mountains. It was supposed to be a quick push for victory but they were halted by the EPLF and are still bogged down six months later, despite immense superiority in weapons and constant air-raids.

The Ethiopians sweat it out in trenches in temperatures that frequently top 100 degrees. They are short of water and tormented by mosquitoes.

The second, western, front covers the eastern approaches to the town of Nacfa, the capital of Sahel, which, although it has no civilian population, is still in Eritrean hands.

The Ethiopians set great store on capturing Nacfa, which seems to have some symbolic signifi-

The soldiers destined for this honor were left in no doubt about where they were going. Tanks and other vehicles were painted with slogans such as "Nacfa now" and "Nacfa or death." For many, it bas been death.

In an EPLF counter-attack on March 13, 5,000 crack troops were killed and wounded as they fled towards Alfabet. Their Soviet officers made a more speedy escape by air.

Today the Ethiopian army bas been forced to depend largely on helicopters for supplies and reinforcements. Dozens of trucks and tanks have been ambushed on route from Alfabet and evidence from prisoners taken by the EPLF suggests that the Ethiopians are short of food and ammunition. Nevertheless, they are expected to start another offensive soon.

There are daily bombing forays against the guerrillas, and sometimes the planes are piloted by Russians; their conversations have been intercepted and recorded on tape by the EPLF.

But life goes on in the well-concealed bases of the EPLF, which bave their own hospitals and schools.

The children's lessons seem very advanced. When they meet Europeans they ask what country they come from. On hearing that you are English they will ask you about the recent election results and what Mrs. Margaret Thatcher is going to do about Zimbabwe Rhodesia.

There is very little activity during the day but when night comes the whole area springs to life. Generators start up and lights come on all over Sahel. The handbuilt roads are alive with vehicles and groups of fighters changing watches. It is, how. ever, the workshops that dominate the night, In a series of hidden camps technicians repair every sort of equipment and vehicle. There are watch repair shops, shops making pots and pans and crutches, 'garages' making up new vehicles from parts cannibalised from damaged trucks captured from the Ethiopians.

In one "garage", they are producing "Vodka-Cola", a car with an American body and a Russian engine. Indeed, everywhere the guerrillas point to their two main benefactors, the Soviet Union and the United States, who have supplied the Ethiopians with so much of the weaponry and transport which the EPLF now uses.

Soviet tanks are hidden away in an area known as the "Russian camp" and everyone in Sahel seems to have a Russian Kalashnikov rifle.

Food is brought in by truck from the Sudan ~ again at night. The drivers know every twist and turn on the journey, which is just as well as much of it has to be made without lights as the trucks pass within firing distance of the Ethiopian guns.

Sahel is full of fighters - the regadelti. They are hidden on every mountainside and appear out of the night wherever you stop. Most are young probably under 25.

Food is limited to bread made from sorghum seeds or wheat flour, ted and sugar: they seldom have meat and most have not tasted vegetables or fruit for many months. The men wear shorts and jackets, the women trousers. In the evenings, the Red Flowers, a group of children, play and sing to the frontline troops. Their songs, based on traditional Eritrean music, speak of current events and their hopes for the future.

It is an eerie scene, with the massive Ethiopian armies just a few miles away. Perhaps more than anything else it demonstrates the extreme confidence of the EPLF, who believe it is only a matter of time before the Ethiopians are driven from Entrea, -- (OFNS)

FUTILE TALKS

Almost everybody has known all along that the so-called self-government talks between Egypt and Israel would fail, except Presideots Carter and Sadat, Begin of Israel knew all along that nothing would come out of the talks because he never had any intention of giving up anything of substance. Therefore, it is not surprising that Robert Strauss, the American envoy and negotiator, should declare that there were difficulties - but not with Egypt - over the negotia-

This view is shared not only by the Arabs, Europeans and the rest of the world, but also by many experienced American officials and experts at the State Department. They realize the futility of the talks and the Camp David accords that produced

As an occupying power, Israel has no intention of decolonizing. On the contrary, it has built scores of new colonies in the occupied lands from Jerusalem to the Golan Heights and has, according to reliable statistics, annexed 30 per cent of the Arab lands in those areas. Hordes of Jewish immigrants from the Soviet Union and other parts of the world are living on land that once belonged to the Arabs. The process continues.

Meanwhile, Egypt has no mandate to negotiate on behalf of the Palestinians whatever President Sadat may say. Not one Palestinian leader has come forward to say that he is satisfied with Egyptian actions and that Egypt could go ahead and negotiate for the Palestinians. And negotiate what? So far the negotiations have produced only further subjugation to the Israelis in a pseudo-legal guise that fools no body but the most naive spectator.

As the facts have begun to dawn on the Europeans and others that the accords were merely a way out of an impasse that Carter faced, and that Sadat used them to sign a separate peace treaty, the Palestinian issue has assumed greater significance as the core of the whole question. This has inevitably led to hysterical Israeli attacks on the main base of the Palestinians in Lebanon in pursuit of a "final solution" by physical liquidation of as many people as possible. The raids have been so savage and brutal that even the U.S. State Department has

Some progress. But the Palestinians will survive and live to fight another day. And finally, they will return home in dignity and independence - however long that might take.

a small say for OPEC in America's economy By The National Association Of Arab Americans

WASHINGTON — All foreign investment in the United States is a matter of legitimate concern to Americans, but Arab investment triggers an emotional response out of proportion to its relative size and scope.

Definition of terms is one place to start dehunking myths. Although "OPEC" is fast becoming synonymous with "Arab" in American politics and journalism, the thirteen-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has only seven Arab members. The non-Arab members, which include the largest and most populous OPEC countries, are Iran, Nigeria, Indonesia, Venezuela, Gabon, and Ecuador. Of the seven Arah members only three - Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, and the United Arab Emirates - have sufficient financial reserves to permit large-scale foreign investment. It is the activities of these three countries that comprise most of what is referred to as" Arab investments" in the United States. Although Arah government activity dominates Arah investment here, other participants include corporations and private individuals. It is the latter category which has come to symbolize "the Arabs" to many Americans, and journalists have written like gossip columnists in telling the story.

U.S. Treasury figures providing a haseline for Arab investment in this country in the period 1974-77 lump all OPEC (Arab and non-Arab) activity together. A study prepared for the American Jewish Committee (AJC) reported the assumption of "knowledgable" people that for purposes of investment in the United States, Saudi, Kuwaiti, and UAE activity makes up the greatest portion of the whole. Using this rough yardstick, it is evident from Treasury figures for 1974-77 (the biggest investing period after the oil price hikes of 1973-74) that most Arab investment in the United States is in federal government offerings. Holding of U.S. hills, bonds, and notes made up almost half of OPEC's estimated $ 43 hillion investment in the United States in that time period. Corporate stocks represented 12% of the total, with bank deposits -making up 16%, and all other activities, including direct investment (such as real estate), debt retirement, and payments on American exports, totalled 26%. The Treasury has estimated that total OPEC (Arab and non-Arab) direct investment in the United States in 1977 alone was $ 157 million.

By way of comparison, total foreign direct investment in the United States in the same year was $ 34 hillion, of which Europeans made up 66%. Canadians 20%, all of OPECtess than one half of one percent. In the same period, American direct investment abroad totalled$ 150 hillion, almost one thousand times OPEC's share in the United States. One federal government official has estimated that "Middle East" oil producers own some $ 36 billion in American assets, but out of a total capital market worth $ 3,300 hillion. This same official projected Arab investment at less than 10% of all foreign holdings in American and at less than 3% of total public ownership of U.S. Treausry securities. A 'New York Times Magazine" account reported that Germany and Japan (America's World War II enemies) rank no 1 and no 2 in holdings of U.S. public deht, with $ 39 and $ 24 hillions, respectively. Arah investments in U.S. corporate bonds and equities make up less than 1% of their market, and Arah hank depositis account for less than 3% of the

The principal Arab investors are 1) conservative by nature, 2) major holders of dollars who would themselves be hurt by precipitous action, 3) partners with the West in an interdependent economic world, and 4) politically allied with the noncommunist West. Arah Bank holdings are shifting into longer-term, slower-maturing deposits which are less vulnerable to quick transfer. Above all, the relative strength and stability of the American economy are the principal reasons why Arabs invest here, and the Saudis in particular feel an affinity for the United States. Were there nevertheless to be a major withdrawal by foreign investors, government officials assert that other money markets could offset the impact.

to shift our Middle East policy to a less pro-Israel made. Arabs sometimes do make the point that such a policy should be adopted "since nothing else seems to work," but Americans should remember that the demands of major Arab investors for withdrawal from the occupied territories are based on United Nations Security Council Resolution 242 (1967), which cited "the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by war." Arab insistence on Palestinian self-determination (meaning a state in the West Bank and Gaza Strip) is accepted worfdwide, including Europe and Japan, only the United States and Israel think otherwise. There is no doubt that Arabs could attempt to exert political leverage on American Middle East policy, but the objectives which they have articulated are reasonable and in the American national interest in that they would permit normal and healthy American relations with the Arabs while protecting Israel's Anxiety about Arab investment in the United States is beightened by our ignorance of Arab society, frustration over power being wielded by previously weak peoples, and the Arab-Israeli conflict, in which the Arab World is gaining strength not achieved on the field of hattle. The key to working out the problems lies in American recognition of the Arab World not as an opponent but as a partner with whom we share vital interests. Such a context A source of anxiety about Arab investments is would make it easier to interpret the same concern that Arah economic power might be used economic indicators in a positive way.

The uncandid confessions of a Soviet bureaucrat

Andrei Gromyko, the Soviet foreign minister, bas done something unusual. He has written a short autobiographical essay as an introduction to an English-language collection of his speeches of the last 10 years.

It is unusual because Soviet leaders are traditionally reticent about their private lives. This is partly a matter of political faith: as Marxists they must believe that history's impersonal forces count for more than individual character.

"Soviet foreign policy," Gromyko argues accordingly, "is not so strongly susceptible to subjective factors, as is so frequently the case with the policy of some major powers belonging to the other social

The Soviet Union's men of power are bittle known, even among their own people. They are seldom seen about informally. They are not obliged to stump the country during elections. Reports of their appearances in public have the formality of announcements in the court circular pages of "The Times" of London.

Nikita Khrushchev was, of course, an exception. After his removal from power he dictated his reminiscences into a tape recorder and, for reasons which are still not entirely clear, the KGB allowed them, no doubt eleaned up bere and there, to reach the West. They have never been published in the Stalin's loyal colleague Vyacheslav Molotov is known to be writing his memoirs. But he is carrying Communists discipline to extraordinary lengths by writing them with the help of an officially provided secretary who deposits each finished chapter in the offices of the Party Central Committee. One may be sure they are not at the list of manuscripts the Party is planning to publish.

It is true that the Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev last year started to publish his memoirs in the bterary magazine "Novy Mir," which 17 years ago was publishing the stories of Solzhenitsyn. But these are essentially moral tales that describe a desirable style of leadership. They reveal little about Brezhnev the Gromyko's short essay is not all that revealing either but it does give an idea of his extraordinary career. He joined the Soviet diplomatic service in 1939 when he was 30 (be was trained as an economist). Later that year be was appointed counsellor in the Soviet Embassy in Washington and in 1943, at the astonishingly young age of 34, he became

From then on he never looked back. He was made a Deputy Minister of Poreign Affairs in 1946 and, after a short spell as ambassador in London, Foreign Minister in 1957.

No other foreign minister in the world has his experience. When Presidents Carter and Brezhnev met in Vienna in June to sign the SALT II treaty, Gromyko was the only senior member of either delegation who had been present at the preceding Vienna Soviet-American summit of 1961, when the young President John F. Kennedy met and clashed

Gromyko was present at the Yalta and Potsdam conferences that did so much to decide the shape of post-war Europe. He led the Soviet delegation to the San Francisco conference that drew up the United Nations Charter.

There are few post-war world figures that he has not met. He calls President Roosevelt a "wise statesman" and Truman "only a pale reflection, like the moon, of his predecessor." He admits to being impressed both by King George VI of Britain and his daughter Queen Elizabeth.

Westerners who have dealt with him appear to have developed a sort of affectionate exasperation for the man. The story is told of how Lord Home. then British Foreign Secretary, entertained Gromyko to lunch shortly after he had resigned as chairman of the Conservative Party.

Home said that perhaps Gromyko should take the job - be couldn't think of anyone more suited for it. Gromyko looked surprised (hut, one may be sure, not too surprised) and asked why. "Well," Home answered, "what you said to me today about Berlin is exactly what you were saying to me 15 years ago. And that makes you a pretty good conservative." — (OFNS)

saudi press review

Writing editorially on the United Nations Security Council decision not to renew the mandate of the U.N. Emergency Force (UNEF) in Sinai, "Al-Jazirah" said Friday it was "disappointing to the Arabs. The Soviet Union's threat to veto a UNEF extention was a trick to give the impression that the Soviet Union supported the Arab cause while it hadalready agreed with the United States to replace UNEF with observers from the U.N. Truce Supervision Organization. Such an "international trick" would make the U.N. party to implementing the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty," the paper said.

"When the Arah states demanded that the UNEF mandate not be renewed, the principal aim behind it was to keep the U.N. away from any kind of participation in those steps. The international force, which has so far remained successful in keeping the U.N. as a peace-supervising body, has been condemned by the Arab world and, in fact, the whole world as well as the U.N. itself," The paper added that it was time for the Arab efforts to begin from where the international efforts failed. "A concerted Arab effort must foil the trick by bringing about Arab alternatives which will be in a position to test the actual intentions of the international forces toward any Arab solutions that achieve justice and peace. And this could be achieved only when Israel withdraws totally from the occupied Arab territories and the legitimate rights of the people of Palestine are acknowledged," the paper concluded. has been directing its guns and Supporting Jordan's call for a planes towards the Lebanese, in tional situations, particularly after Israel's attacks on South Lebanon." It described the present stage as "delicate and critical" and said that a new strategy by the Arabs would clearly define what is needed of them in the face of Israeli conspiracies and aggressive acts. "As for Israel, it is trying to benefit from the time factor by deepening differences among the settlers of the occupied territories and sending them out to facilitate for itself the establishment of new settlements to rehabilitate Russian and other immigrants. "Al-Medina" said the assassi-

The Middle East is, in fact, passing through an age of Jewish harbarism the like of which the world bad witnessed in ancient as well as modern history. It has, however, not seen the methods being deployed in the battles by the Jews - methods that have even surpassed those ascribed to

The paper said it believed that every Palestinian who aspired to return to his homeland was aware that be was a target of the Zionists. "Therefore, the assassinations of Palestinian leaders in Beirut, Rome, London, Paris or in any other world capital represent the chain of such acts. Despite this, the Palestinians will not forget the displacement in which they have already lived more than one-third of a century. Their resolve and determination to liberate their usurped land has never wavered."

The newspaper expressed its conviction that Mohsen's assassination had been engineered by well-known Zionist brains.

that two diamonds is a relatively weak bid that shows 0 to 7 high-eard points and asks the notrump bidder to pass (which is the way most people play), it becomes clear that you should double for takeout. Of course, there's some risk attached to the double, but, even so, it is much better to compete than to pass. You can't unresistingly let the opponents play the hand at two diamonds — which they're likely to make — when there's such a good chance that your side can also make a part score. U.S. pays less for OPEC crude than that of 'friendly countries'

Washington Bureao

WASHINGTON, July 27 - At a time U.S. officials are criticizing the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries for "high" oil prices, the United States is paying an average of over $ 2 a barrel more for non-OPEC crude than for OPEC petroleum, "Arab News has learned.

According to the latest oil price figures, the U.S. is paying an average of $ 23.34 per barrel for oil from such "friendly countries" as Britain, Norway and Canada, while petroleum bought from OPEC states is averaging $ 21.18.

Canadian oil — at$ 25.00 a barrel — is the most expensive crude currently being imported by the U.S., while Saudi oil, at $ 18.00, is the cheapest, according to the fig-type of crude oil it produces most. Each state, of course, sells a oumber of varieties of crude. For example, Kuwait sells three, Iran markets ten, and the United Arab Emirates sells seven.

In his receot evergy speech in Kansas City, Missouri, President Jimmy Carter announced his administrations intention to reduce dependence on OPEC oil and increase crude purchases from Mexico and Canada.

Given the latest oil price figures, this means Americans can expect to pay even higher prices for fuel than previously predicted.

Mexican crude - oow widely viewed in the U.S. as an alternative to Saudi oil - costs $ 22.60 a barrel, or over$4 more than Saudi petroleum.

According to political observers, there has been no attempt by the Carter administration to explain to the public that OPEC oil is on average much cheaper than non-OPEC crude, or that Saudi crude is the cheapest of all.

Following are the current prices for crude oil charged by America's 17 major suppliers:

- 1. Canada: $ 25.00
- 2. Malaysia: $ 23.70 3. Norway: $ 23.50
- 4. Algeria (OPEC): $ 23.50

Urges Kennedy to run

McGovern calls for dumping Carter

- Sen. George McGovern, accusing the Carter administration of "misgoverning" the United States, Thursday urged Sen. Edward Kennedy to enter the 1980 presidential race.

In a speech to congressional interns, McGovern, the Democratic party presidential nominee in 1972, called Kennedy the most logical candidate for our party...

"If he decides to run, I believe be can be nominated and elected aod would be an inspiring president. If be declines to run, Democrats must be prepared to field a strong alternative.

A persistent critic of Carter administration policies, McGovern said the problem with the administration "is not the cahinet or the Washington press corps, or the Washington establ-

"It is the Carter White House. The perspectives, the policies and the priorities of the administration have been mistaken from the beginning."

Using language far harsher than he previously has directed at the administration, McGovern said

"The real crisis of confidence can be found in the fact that, by 71 per cent to 26 per cent, a majority of the people just this week feel that this president may well not have the hasic competence to do the joh," Harris said.

The figures emerged from a poll completed last Saturday, according to Harris, who announced the fiodings in a speech to the National Conference of State legislatures

If Carter is not able to pull out the slump by September, Harris told the nationwide gathering of 1,400 legislators, an alternate Democratic party nominee could emerge before the 1980 primary.

Harris said Kennedy is the strongest of the Democratic figures surveyed as possible presidential candidates. He said California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is doing "poorly" as a prospec-

U.S.Treasury post

Senate hearings on Miller begin

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) - G. William Miller, who admits he is leaving a secure job as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board for an insecure one as U.S. Secretary of the Treasury, says he doesn't see the need for many changes in the Carter administration's economic policy.

Appointments to the Fed are for 14-year terms, while the current term of Treasury Secretary expires with the end of President Jimmy Carter's term in January 1981. Miller joked that the shift to treasury may be "hastening my return to the private sector." Miller, 54, former chairman of Textron inc., was named by Carter last Thursday to succeed W. Michael Blumenthal in the treasury post. He was scheduled to appear before the U.S. Senate Finance Committee Friday for a hearing on his appointment as treasury secretary. Since he was cleared last year for the Federal Reserve Board post, it's likely his confirmation by the Senate for the new post will be quick. However, one issue that delayed Miller's confirmation as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board could come up again in the heariogs into his treasury appointment. This concerns questionable payments made by Texron aod its subsidia Helicopter, during the period Miller was chairman, Miller told reporters last week he has no important disagreemeot with the economic policies pursued by Blumeothal and the administration. These policies emphasize fighting inflatioo through restraints on government spending and hy keeping to a slow

Rash of engine problems hit DC-10s

سبت ٤ رمضان ١٣٩٩ هــ

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) - U.S. Federal Aviation Administration officials have reported six forced landings by DC-10s, most due to engine trouhle, since the big jets returned to the air 14 days ago.

However, FAA spokesman Dennis Feldman says the problems are not related to the faulty engine pylon mountings blamed for the May 25th DC-10 crash that claimed 273 lives in Chicago. All 138 domestic DC-10s were grounded June 6 until the FAA ruled the planes safe to fly. The ban was lifted 37 days later.

Feldman said, "these incidents are not related in any way to the eogine pyloo mounting problem...these are all related to the engine itself and some are precautionary moves.

"Statistically speaking we expect to have engine shutdowns of this type on any aircraft. They are of no concero. Occasionally a pilot will shut an engine down knowing the other two or three will carry the airplane." he said.

Not included in the FAA's list was an incident in Marseilles, France, involving a DC-10. The jet, owned by the French airline UTA, sprayed large quantities of kerosene on the runway Thursday as the aircraft was preparing to take off for North Africa.

Because of the risk of fire, passengers, were evacuated.

A spokesman for the Marseilles Marignane Airport said it was a "normal breakdown, not of a seri-
